WORKERS STORM FORD FOR JOBS

DETROIT, Jan. 2—More than 25,000 shivering men stamping feet and burning newspapers to keep warm, stormed the Fordson plant of the Ford Motor Company this morning as hiring of the 30,000 new employees to be added to the Ford payrolls began.

A. E. Wilson, employment manager of the plant early this morning estimated the crowd to number 12,000, but as the additional men arrived he believed there was approximately 30,000 men waiting for work. Only 500 men will be hired daily.

FOUR FLEE FROM JAIL AT JACKSON

JACKSON, O., Jan. 2—Four prisoners sawed away the bars of a rear window and escaped from the county jail last midnight, it was learned today.

Their cases were to have come before the grand jury which convened today.

The jail matron discovered the escape when she prepared to give the prisoners their breakfast.

Old Fashioned!

These companionate marriages may be O. K. for some, but pretty Mrs. Gordon Kinsey vastly prefers the old-fashioned variety, and so does her Kentucky "kum-mel" husband. They were married Feb. 16 last, separated on their bridal night for a year's trial separation, and reunited three months ahead of time. The bride is shown as she arrived in U. S. aboard the S. S. De Grasse.

FIRE LOSS IN CITY IS SMALL

Damage in 1928 Only $4,008 As Compared To $27,915 In Previous Year.

Circleville certainly had a lucky year in 1928 as far as fire loss was concerned. The annual report, which has just been completed by Talmor Wise, fire chief, shows the fire loss in Circleville for the year of 1928 was $4,008 while in 1927 the loss was $27,915.

During the year the local department answered 47 calls, three of which were false alarms and three were out of town. The department answered a call to Clarksburg and two to a burning trestle on the Pennsylvania railroad near the city.

Four buildings were condemned and torn down; two buildings were ordered roofed; eight chimneys were ordered repaired; one house condemned and 200 buildings in the city were carefully inspected by the fire department. This careful inspection made by the department is the chief reason for the low fire loss last year, Chief Wise said.

This report will probably be given before the city council Wednesday evening.

WEST WILL HEAD RESEARCH BUREAU

COLUMBUS, Jan. 2—C. J. West, farm economist for the Ohio-Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land of Cleveland, is today directing the business of the newly established research department in the Ohio Farm Bureau here. He was appointed head of the department yesterday, according to an announcement by Murray D. Lincoln, general manager of the bureau.

It is understood that the new department will conduct research in marketing, distribution and selling.

C. E. JUSTICE DIES

An attack of heart trouble was said to have caused the attorney's death. Mr. Justice was formerly a teacher in the public schools of Carroll, and in country schools of Fairfield-co.

Col. C. E. Groce is suffering from a severe attack of influenza. His condition on Wednesday was improved over that of Tuesday.

FODDER PAPER SEEN AS BOON FOR FARMERS

Cornstalks Utilized To Make Newsprint—Agricultural Wastes Employed.

Wide-spread interest in paper made from cornstalks, manufacture of which has started at Danville, Ill., is reflected at the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau, where County Agent H. S. Lewis declares that it marks a new era in the utilization of farm by-products.

The use of cornstalks to make paper will prove a boon to counties which are devoted chiefly to the raising of corn, Mr. Lewis declares, but it will be a long time, if any, before this new paper industry will effect Pickaway and surrounding counties, which specialize in live stock feeding.

Most of the fodder from the 78,000 acres of corn produced in Pickaway-co is used by livestock feeders, Mr. Lewis explained. The cornstalks are valuable to the feeders for roughage and bedding. Pickaway-co is among the six leading livestock feeding counties in the state. The others are Clinton, Fayette, Green, Champaign and Madison counties.

GREAT IMPORTANCE
The announcement of the manufacture of paper from cornstalks, however, is of great importance to agriculture, Mr. Lewis said. Several farm papers and newspapers have already printed complete editions on the cornstalk paper. It is said that the successful establishment of a paper and pulp industry using agricultural wastes as its raw materials means:

The stopping of overdrains on the world's forest resources.

Automatic flood control by arresting the destruction of forests at the head waters of rivers.

Creation of new sources of income for agriculture from by-products now wasted.

Building of pulp and paper mills where they have never been built before—wherever corn is grown abundantly and there is ample water supply for manufacturing.

Gradual return of part of the American paper industry from Canada and its eventual establishment near the center of population and industry—the corn belt of the middle west.

JARDINE PLEASED
William M. Jardine, secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, in commenting on the new paper process, said:

"This department has been at work for many years on various methods of utilizing these waste products and has shown conclusively that cornstalks can be utilized not only for paper and building boards of various kinds, but for various food products and other materials."

"A recent survey made by this department, with a view to determining whether the spread between the cost of manufacture of these products from straw and cornstalks and the selling price of the finished products would compare favorably with other sources of raw material shows that it is within the range of practicability to accomplish this."

"There is no doubt that an enormous volume of available material now going to waste can be utilized. With the rapid progress that is being made in the technical and commercial procedures we feel sure that a new day is at hand when many of these agricultural wastes will become sources of profit, not only to the farmer, but to the country at large."

HUGE SUM EXPENDED
Three-quarters of a million dollars have been invested in the Danville plant and research laboratory without a pound of paper being produced for the commercial market.

More units are being planned, a 100-ton mill requiring 75,000 to 100,000 acres of cornstalks within a 15-mile radius. Cotton-seed hulls and sugar cane bagasse have also been successfully used in the Danville mill for the production of cellulose pulp, which has a multiplicity of uses aside from paper—such as rayon, lacquers, plastics of all kinds, etc.

DR. HEFFNER HOME

Dr. George W. Heffner, who has been critically ill at Mt. Carmel hospital for several weeks, was brought to his home at 615 S. Court-st. Tuesday evening in the Mader and Ebert invalid car. His nurse is Miss Mary Goeller, of Mt. Carmel, daughter of the late William Goeller.

Confesses Killing

Because he felt attentions of Frank A. Bartley, 42, wealthy dairyman, would cause his mother to leave his father, Ray Kilgore (above), 22, and a graduate of Stanford University, shot and killed him in his home at El Centro, Cal. Then he walked over to sheriff's office and gave himself up.

DAIRY SCHOOL PLANNED HERE

Cause of Variation In Butterfat Production To Be Sought at Clinics.

To assist dairymen and increase the returns per cow in 1929, H. S. Lewis, county farm bureau agent, has arranged a series of dairy feeding schools for the near future. He will be assisted with these schools by Ivan McKellick, dairy specialist of Ohio State University.

With the butterfat production per cow in Pickaway-co varying from 135 pounds to 270 pounds per year, the agent believed there must be some cause and the object of the schools is to find that cause and remedy it.

The various combinations of home grown feeds, the amount and kinds of feed needed to balance the ration when used with feeds produced on the farm, the amount of feed per day and other similar questions will be discussed at the schools.

Any dairyman interested in attending the schools is invited to select the location most convenient and take part in the discussions. The schools will be held at various places throughout the county.

The schedule is as follows: Monday afternoon, Jan. 7, at the Walnut-twp school building at 1:30 p.m.; Monday evening, Jan. 7, at the Stoutsville school building at 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Jan. 8, at the Duval school building at 10 a.m.; Monday afternoon, Jan. 8, at the Saltcreek-twp Farmers' Institute at 2 p.m.; Wednesday, Jan. 9, at the Williamsport school building at 10 a.m. and at the farm bureau office Jan. 9, at 1:30 p.m.

WHEAT BELIEVED TO BE UNDAMAGED

Many persons believed that the cold snap which settled over this vicinity would play havoc with the wheat but H. S. Lewis, county agent, expressed the belief Wednesday morning that no damage would be caused by the sudden drop of the mercury.

The warm days have made the shoots tender and the high wind and low temperature would snap them off and the ground freezing would break the roots, it was feared.

The agent believed the wheat is well rooted and would be little hurt by the wind and sudden freeze.

MANY GET TAGS

In spite of the large number of persons who waited until the last minute to procure their 1929 license plates the crowds which packed into the office of Mayor Hedges on W. Main-st. were handled in fine shape Monday. The line moved along steadily and few had any reason to complain.

L. E. Miller, service director acted as doorman. Mayor Hedges was assisted by his wife, his son Thomas, R. L. Brehmer and C. M. Clay.

HEARST ASKS PLAN TO KILL PROHIBITION

Publisher Offers $25,000 Prize For Solution To Dry Law Problem.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—William Randolph Hearst, publisher, today offered a prize of $25,000 for the best plan to repeal the Eighteenth amendment and substitute in place of prohibition a more liberal and more American measure.

In making known his plan in a telegram to Edwin J. Clapp of the Durant Motors, Inc., Hearst said: "It never has been possible and never will be possible to prevent traffic in compact and concentrated alcoholic drinks."

PROBE DEMANDED
His offer followed closely upon a demand from W. C. Durant, donor of $30,000 in prizes for the best plan to enforce the Eighteenth amendment, for the appointment of a congressional committee to "determine why the Eighteenth amendment has not been satisfactorily enforced."

"I do not believe prohibition ever will be enforced," Hearst wrote. "And I do believe that if a violent effort is made to enforce it during the next four years by the Republican administration, the next president of the United States will be a Democrat."

Therefore, I think that in offering a prize or how best to enforce prohibition, Mr. Durant really offered a prize on how best to put the Republican party out of power."

While these two developments were enraging the attention of supporters and opponents of prohibition, the New York Telegram, in a copyrighted article, published the results of a survey showing that 44 per cent of the liquor sold in New York speaksies contained poison in some form. Ten per cent of New York's liquor supply contained wood alcohol, the Telegram said.

POISON IS FOUND
Thirty investigators, worked there weeks getting 504 samples from 400 drinking places in Manhattan. These samples were all analyzed by registered chemists, who found, the Telegram said in a copyrighted article today:

That 55 contained wood alcohol. That 70 others had poisonous impurities resulting from improper reneturing (Co.). That 362 others, while drinkable were either purely synthetic or cut so they had only 5 to 20 per cent of genuine liquor.

ACCEPTANCE IS PRIMARY NEED. OPINION SAYS

Judge Holds Possession of Ground Within Time Limit Gives Money to City.

That the will of the late Frank P. Berger, in leaving a bequest to the city of Circleville for the erection of a hospital within two years after the death of his wife, Sarah J. Berger, does not mean that the hospital must be completed and equipped within that space of time, is the opinion handed down in Pickaway-co common pleas court Monday by Judge Clarence Curtain.

This was one item of an opinion on the construction of the will on a petition filed originally by Irvin F. Snyder, trustee of the estate, for instructions as to the disposal of crops left by the decedent, and on a cross petition filed by the city of Circleville as to the meaning of the bequest.

THREE QUESTIONS

Three questions were propounded by the city in its cross petition. The first was whether the city could accept the bequest at any time within two years after the death of Mrs. Berger; the second as to whether it is necessary that the hospital be completed and equipped within two years of Mrs. Berger's death or necessary only that the city accept the bequest within that time, and the third as to whether the bequest becomes the absolute property of the acceptance or is forfeited by the abandonment of the hospital.

Judge Curtain said "yes" to the first question. To the second he said: "It is apparent that said bequest should be accepted in order that the city have the right to take possession of grounds for hospital grounds. I am of the opinion that the language of the will does not contemplate that it was the intention of the testator that said hospital shall be erected and completely equipped within two years from the date of the death of the said Sarah J. Berger, before the said city shall be entitled to receive the bequest."

The third question was unanswered by Judge Curtain, who said: "It is not the province of this court to determine what disposition would be made of said trust fund if said hospital was forfeited or abandoned. It would then be the duty of a court of equity to determine that question."

APPEAL IS PLANNED

Attorney Snyder said Wednesday that he plans to appeal the opinion on the grounds that in answering the second question propounded by the city, Judge Curtain ignored provisions of the will concerned with the construction and erection of the hospital.

The hospital question will come before the city council again Wednesday night when action is expected on an ordinance authorizing the issue of $75,000 in hospital bonds, which were voted at the November election. It is also expected that an effort will be made to have council reconsider its selection of the Myers site on Northridge road in favor of the Charles Niles property at Washington and Union-sts which was donated to the city for hospital purposes. Rumors of a possible injunction suit if the north side site is retained may or may not have a bearing on the issue.

INVESTIGATION OF LYNCHING STARTS

PARCHMAN, Miss. Jan. 2.—Official investigation of the lynching of Charlie Shepherd, 41-year-old negro, was under way here today. It was admittedly perfunctory, there being slight possibility that mob leaders would be singled out for prosecution.

Shepherd, a trusty at the state prison farm near here, was burned alive Monday night after he had admitted slaying Prison Sergeant J. D. Duval and attacking Duval's 18-year-old daughter. The mob was made up of 2000 enraged Delta farmers, who had scourged three counties for the negro since the crime was discovered last Friday morning.

Graphic Outlines of History

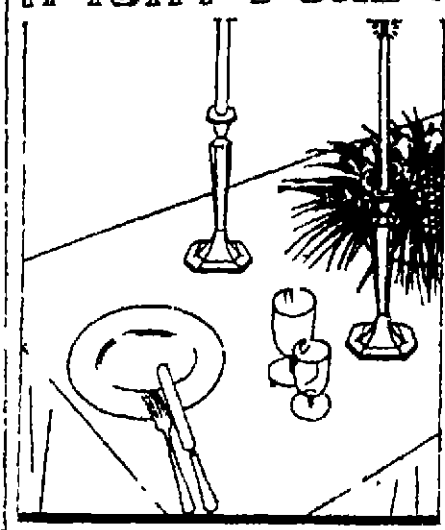

THE FIRST "BANK OF THE UNITED STATES"

The first great national bank, called the "Bank of the United States" was established at Philadelphia in 1791, having branches in the leading cities. At that time a national bank was the subject of discussion, as the people believed that the government should have nothing to do with the banking business.

Conscientious planning and expert supervision result in ceremonies unmarred by any neglected detail. Our attendants are trained in thoroughness.

IT ISN'T DONE!

Can you detect in the above setting the error in taste or etiquette? If not, read on.

AFTER you have finished using your sterling silver knife and fork for the meat course, they should be very carefully placed on the plate, both pieces of sterling lying together at a slight angle in reference to the edge of the table. The handles out, the prong tips of the fork and the tip of the knife at approximately the center of the plate. The fork is placed first, nearest the table edge, then the knife with the blade edge toward the fork.

Fashions

Moire Metalized and Modernized, Goes South—Curtainment of Ruffles.

By FRANCES PAGET
Copyright, 1928, by Women's Wear Magazine.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Fashion's tendency to revert to fabrics of the stand alone type is still apparent. There are, however, many women who prefer to cling to chiffons, or perhaps one had better say have chiffons cling to them.

A resume of several of the collections designed and destined for southern use inclines one to the impression that women are fighting hard to retain the slim silhouette. While they are far ahead in some instances, there is generally a curtailment of ruffles and extra inches in the width of the average dress.

Moire one of the most substantial silks, for this stately fabric is invariably included in the smartest collections. Because moire has finally been treated like a contemporary it is beginning a career for itself. Instead of making the error of keeping moire an old-world fabric employed in styles that have so much the feeling of an old-time costume, that women feel out of the modern picture when they wear them, designers have at last created moire gowns in the modernistic manner.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

STOCK FEEDERS HAVING SUCCESS

H. S. Lewis, farm bureau agent, made the statement Monday morning that very satisfactory results were being obtained by the Pickaway-co feeders and unusual gains can be noticed. He explained this was due to a certain extent to the weather and the good quality of corn.

"The feeder records kept by the farmers are showing unusual results," he said.

The feeder demonstration records will be taken in March, the agent said.

THEATRES

NAMESAKE IN GARDEN

An unusual honor was conferred upon Colleen Moore during the filming of "Synthetic Sin," which is now at the Cliftona theater. An amateur Dahlia enthusiast named his most beautiful blossom after her, and it won two blue ribbons in a Dahlia show shortly afterward. Miss Moore now has her namesake growing in her garden.

WAR COMEDY HERE

This picture is claimed one of the greatest comedy novelties of all time. The picture is wound around three burnt cork comedians in the trenches, a ducky vamp and a regiment of chocolate soldiers in a war time farce, played with a black-face cast.

COSTUMES DIFFICULT

The more scanty the costume, the more difficult it is to design, according to David Cox, who designed the beautiful costumes worn by Josephine Dunn in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Excess Baggage," a William Haines starring production which comes to the Metropolitan theater on Thursday.

Miss Dunn plays the role of a vaudeville actress, the second member of a team that includes Haines. The story is filled with the loves, heartaches and everyday life that goes on back of the tinsel of the stage.

"In designing Miss Dunn's costumes, I tried to make them as simple as possible so that one high point of decoration would be effective. For instance, she wears a ballet costume of full pink tulle skirt with a bodice of pink satin. Instead of outlining the neck line and armholes with rhinestones or braid, I simply used a wreath of puffed flowers across the bodice."

James Cruze directs "Excess Baggage" while the cast includes Ricardo Cortez, Neely Edwards and Cyril Chadwick.

Calendar on the Wrist

An oblong wristlet watch made recently in England measures only one inch by one and a half. It records not only the time, but in addition, the day of the week, the month, the date, and the phases of the moon. The last four records are contained in small circles on the dial.

DOZEN YEARS OF SUFFERING END; KONJOLA PRAISED

Grateful Lady Happy To Urge All To Try New Medicine That Restored Her Health.

MRS. J. C. PAULOSKO.
Remarkable, but true, it appears that Konjola is at the very apex of its powers when all else has failed. How frequently this is proved, as in the case of Mrs. J. C. Paulosko, R. F. D. No. 2, Painesville, Ohio. Jubilant over the magnificent results she found in this master medicine, she says: "Konjola is almost magical; I marvel when I reflect on what this splendid medicine did for me. For twelve years indigestion, kidney troubles and constipation made life miserable; for twelve years nothing helped me. I had little faith, but friends insisted that I give Konjola a chance. I consented, and what a wise thing that was. Four bottles of this astounding compound turned the trick. In one month the ills of twelve years were ended; in one month all my pain and suffering were swept away. Konjola is the champion of all medicines; it must be to take hold of a protracted case like mine and vanquish it in so short a time. I am told that Konjola is the medicine with more than a million friends. Well, it has another lifelong friend in me."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, O., at the Mykranitz Pharmacy drug store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

PREVENTING WARS

The League of Nations spent $26,000 in cablegrams to Paraguay and Bolivia, in the effort to prevent them from going to war. This may seem like quite a sum, but it is very trifling compared with the more than $30,000,000,000 which we spent in the World war, not to speak of the far greater sum spent in the aggregate by the fighting powers.

For every billion dollars spent in fighting wars, the world up to now has spent only a few thousands to stop them. Some day it will dawn on the nations that wars are like fires. They cost incalculable sums when they start, but a few dollars spent on a fire extinguisher might save the whole loss.

THE TIME OF BEGINNINGS

Susan Coolidge, noted poet, remarked that "Every day is a fresh beginning." On any old day as well as New Year's we can start to get rid of hurtful habits and form better ones. But somehow human nature likes that thought of the fresh new page of new life, and new period of days and months, in which we can plan new enterprises and for which we entertain high hopes of good things yet to be.

Our past is irrevocable. The old year has gone, and none of its mistakes can be recalled. They prevent the from going to war, single one of the results of those mistakes can be recovered from, by a new attitude toward life. Our future is for ourselves to mold. We have entire power over it. Our habits get a fearful grip over us, so that it sometimes seems as if we could not change them. And yet every one of them can be changed by a firm determination, and it is not usually so difficult as we think. The New Year is a good time to start in trying.

LIMITING AUTO SPEED

One suggestion often made for preventing the terrible automobile accidents that cause so much sorrow and loss, is that automobiles be so constructed that they could not run at more than a maximum speed. Some people name 30 miles an hour as a suitable rate for such a maximum. They claim that it is fast enough for anyone to go, and that if no car could go faster than that, a large part of the accidents would be prevented.

A good deal could be said in favor of this idea. Yet in the great majority of accidents, the auto responsible for the mishap must have been traveling considerably less than 30 miles an hour. In 65 per cent of all automobile fatalities, the victims are said to be pedestrians. Probably in most of these cases, the cars were running in crowded streets at rates under 30 miles an hour. The country would probably be a good deal better off, if no one ran his car more than 30 miles an hour. Yet the great majority of drivers low run faster than that a good deal of the time, and most of them would oppose the idea of any such maximum limit. They would say that 40 or 50 miles on a good and unobstructed road, is often safer than 15 miles an hour on some congested streets.

The number of automobile accidents now occurring is a disgrace. It is not easy to reduce them so long as people maintain their present temper. What is needed is a strong public sentiment against accidents, that shall favor taking away the license of drivers whose actions cause peril.

Not everyone is fitted to drive an automobile. It calls not merely for skill, but for caution and courtesy, and people who lack these qualities should not be turned loose on the roads with such a powerful machine.

Notes That Change

"Cheers of the multitude," said H. H. the sage of Chinatown, "are often like the songs of birds who rejoice in the springtime of hope and become silent in the autumn of experience."—Washington Star.

CABBAGES and KINGS

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
To talk of many things:
Of shoes—and ships—and sailing-wax—
And cabbages—and kings—
Lewis Carroll

Yes, make your resolutions
And premise: to be good
Doing just the things you know
That you really should.

Work like sixty every day
Scrip and sweat and save,
Go to bed at 10 each night
Always, kid behave.

You will find in 1930,
If you try and try,
That you're still the same gazabo
Barely getting by.

When it comes to resolutions for the new year there is much, as Mr. Dooley said of the tariff, being said on both sides by people who do not know either side. It therefore becomes our duty to cast light in dark places. Good resolutions are made by people with a superiority fixation. They are made by people with a good equipment of conceit and a large fund of selfishness. The theory that they come from a realization of one's shortcomings, from a humble and a contrite heart, is bunk. Consider their purport:—

One man says he will quit drinking. Not because the act is in violation of the law, not because the practice is bestial, or stupid, but because it (a) interferes with his well being, or (b) because it interferes with his business. He will eat less because he is getting too stout for his own comfort. He will smoke less because he believes he will feel better. He will save because he will therefore have more to spend at one time. He will get more sleep because he feels fresher next morning and can make more money. Certainly these things are well enough, but no man can take credit to himself because of them. If one does not touch a hot stove for fear of a burned finger there can be no medals awarded for self denial. And that's that.

Congress is in session, and while it may be said that there are too many laws in the world now, there is also urgent need of a few more. Will Congress kindly consider bills as follows:

A law against playing the saxophone. Against serving asparagus at formal dinners. Against reading titles aloud in the movies. Against instructing one's partner at bridge. Against showing snapshots of one's children. Against restaurants calling a collection of gizzards "chicken supreme en caserole." Against starting the radio when "somebody else wants to read."

A. Ludlow Clayton, chief engineer for a great oil company, says that in 20 years automobiles will be traveling 100 miles on ten cents' worth of fuel. In other words, happiness is always just around the corner.

In 20 years some of the more elderly members of the congregation won't be interested.

Detroit is going to make insanity tests upon men who drive at a high rate of speed through crowded traffic. But they have already been tested, and proven afflicted, your honor.

Man is a curious creature. In the summer the whole wide world is calling. The woods, the gurgling little streams, the hills from which he may view the sweep of fertile vales. Nature is as ever flamboyant, prodigal, gorgeous. All of the wonder and mystery of life are spread before him. And man? He motors endlessly on dusty roads, watching the ruts, trying to pass the feller in front of him, thinking in terms of gas and mileage.

And in the winter? He forgets to take in the screens and put away the lawn mower. He forgets to take the leaves. He neglects the bracing glory of the landscape to lose himself in contemplation of a little boy with a sled. He tries to read the evening paper yawns, declares that these are great nights to sleep, and wanders off to bed. Another day accomplished.

The city of Milwaukee wants larger population. So does this city, so does New York and Nome, Alaska, and London. Every town in America and points west is urging the census taker to do his duty. Everybody wants to live in a bigger town.

Benefit From Anything

When a raven has croaked in auspiciously, let not the appearance hurry you away from it; but straightaway make a distinction in your mind and say, None of these things is signified to me, but either to my poor body, or to my small property, or to my reputation, or to my children, or to my wife; but to me all significations are auspicious if I choose. For, whatever of these things results, it is in my power to derive benefit from it.—Epictetus.

TWO DAYS OUT

Peaks of Desire by Kane O'Day

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, reporter, falls in love with Ann Tremaine, a wealthy debutante. He takes her to live at his boarding house, and introduces her to a new world. She is attracted to Steve Harrison, a husky young mechanic of whom Jerry is jealous. Ann gets a job in a small theatre owned by Nick Pagalos, and later asks her employer to hire Steve. One night Pagalos makes love to Ann, and in the battle which ensues between him and Steve, the Greek is made to realize his error. That night Steve confesses his love to Ann, and they embrace. Steve leaves his job to go into the trucking business. In the meantime Jerry Dunn returns from a trip and tells Ann he is no longer heartbroken over her. While they are chatting, Maizie Thompson, an ex-sweetheart of Steve's, appears. She accuses Ann of having stolen Steve from her. Ann denies this, and Steve, who has come in, says he does not love Maizie. Maizie breaks into sobs and Ann and Steve leave her with Jerry. He finds himself taking an interest in the girl, and when he tries to soothe her she tells him it wouldn't be hard for her to fall in love with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

THE woman eyes of Maizie took in Jerry's astonishment at her bold statement.

"You mustn't talk to men that way," he told her severely. "It sounds as though you were trying to throw yourself away too easily. 'You don't understand me,' she said, a strained look on her face. 'When a thing is in my mind I can't cover it up. I got to say what I think.'"

"Well, you mustn't think about being in love with me," she said at your head—the way it sounded," Maizie protested, struggling to make her thoughts clear.

knew instinctively that it was a woman—that it was Ann. Jerry opened the door.

When she came in it was evident that Ann had not even started to prepare for bed.

"I've been sitting in my room thinking all over and I thought I ought to come back," she said with a slightly self-conscious smile.

"Glad to have you," Jerry declared. "We're just chewing the rag and trying to shake off the jinx. Won't you sit down and have a cigarette?"

"Thanks," said Ann. She tried to look at Maizie in the friendliest way possible, but she had a feeling

Maizie was pity, an aloof sympathy for the other girl's unhappiness. But that sympathy could not easily be converted into a warm glow. Between them, no matter what words passed their lips, would always exist a submerged sense of rivalry.

It was possible for them to ignore the subject of Steve Harrison and they did, but Ann was definitely aware that she had, perhaps unwittingly, deprived Maizie of his attentions. Steve had not loved the girl, that much was evident, but he had filled her life with hope and desire. No girl of Maizie Thompson's type could ever forgive the girl who had supplanted her. Still, Ann wanted to be generous.

"I wish you would come and have lunch with me some day," she said to Maizie.

The girl smiled thinly. "I eat in the factory and carry my own lunch with me."

"Then let's have dinner together some night."

Maizie made an effort to be amiable. "That's awfully nice of you, but what's the use?"

"I know you're trying to be pleasant to me, but it wouldn't be very interesting for us to sit around and talk about something else when we'd both be thinking about Steve, would it?"

"There are other things in the world besides men to talk about," Ann smiled.

"Come on, Maizie, let's get started. I'm going to take you home."

"I meant I might be almost in love with you—a guy like you. But it was just an idea, a sort of dream. I was really trying to get Steve out of my head and I turned my thoughts to you just to see how it would feel to consider somebody else besides Steve."

He was surprised to find that she had, instinctively, struck upon an established principle of psychology. "You're a brighter girl than I thought," he smiled. "Your natural instinct told you at once what it has taken the college professors a long time to find out—the principle of substitution. If you want to get rid of an idea, yank it out of your mind and plug the gap with another idea. Don't try to leave the vacant space empty or the old idea will come back."

He laughed. "Maizie, you're a highbrow, even if you don't know it."

"When you talk to me that way," she said, helplessly, "you get me all up in the air. I don't know what it's all about—but you're sure one guy that knows how to sympathize with a girl. Most fellows are only after what they can get."

Even before he could answer there was the soft sound of rapping on his door. Both of them her behavior was stiff, artificial. Jerry lit her cigarette; it was easier to be nonchalant when smoking. "What I really want to do is to apologize to you." She looked straight at Maizie.

"You don't owe me no apology," Maizie answered. "I was sore and hurt, and I said some reckless things—but I'm getting over it now."

"It's nice of you to look at it that way, but I know I acted terribly," Ann insisted. "We're just a couple of girls and you got the worst of it—or thought you did. Instead of being friendly with you, I acted like a ramrod. Maybe there's some way I can help you out, if you would let me."

"I don't know what you could do," Maizie said, embarrassed.

"I'm all right now."

"We might at least be friendly," Ann suggested.

"You'll find Maizie is a pretty real sort of little person," Jerry put in.

But Ann knew in her heart that she would never quite be able to fraternize with Maizie Thompson as an equal. The external cheapness of the girl offended her good taste and inevitably shut off any understanding of a hidden, finer strain. The feeling uppermost in Ann's mind concerning

"Yes, but men are most important—for girls our age. What's the use of kidding ourselves? We both got a big feeling for Steve and you turned up the lucky number. That's all. He's for you and he can't see me at all. What's the use dragging it out?"

Ann could make a gesture of kindness, but she did not know what to do after that.

"Well, I just thought—"

"You meant well. I will give you credit for that," Maizie smiled, although she, too, was embarrassed. "I'm sorry I said all the things I did and acted that way. You see, I guess, I haven't got the will-power to hide my feelings. With a girl like you it's different. Your heart could be smashed into a thousand pieces and you'd just smile and look pleasant."

Jerry smiled at Ann; there was a tension in the room that had been absent when he was alone with Maizie.

"Well, if you care for my opinion, I think you're both doggone nice girls," he stated, "and I hope both of you have a lot of luck. It's all in fun—everything straightens itself out in time. Come on, Maizie, let's get started. I'm going to take you home."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

WANTS NILES SITE

Editor, The Circleville Herald:—It is the consensus of opinion of many residents and voters of Circleville that the Council has made a drastic mistake in refusing to accept the Niles property for the proposed Hospital site. Many voters of Circleville voted for the hospital issue because of Mr. Niles' offer. This offer should be reconsidered for the following reasons:

Very rarely is a hospital, however efficiently operated, self-supporting. For this reason the obtaining of funds in the future for maintaining a hospital will prove to be quite a problem. Mr. Niles has offered his property as a gift. The council has chosen to pay $4000 for the north end property and besides will have to put in a new sewer system which will no doubt cost another several thousand dollars. Added to this will be the expense of leveling the property. This amount of money would buy a very complete X-Ray outfit for the new hospital and there would be enough or more to buy other equipment. The proper equipment of a hospital is exceedingly important. A lawn or park means nothing, nor does nearness to a car line nor any other line. As far as location is concerned, one is as good as another unless it is right beside a railroad or a smoky factory. Money and proper equipment are the important considerations. The primary purpose of a hospital is not to possess an artistic outside with large grounds and flowers. These are minor considerations and amount to nothing compared with proper and good equipment which will save more lives and make people more comfortable when they are sick than outside appearances.

By proper equipment I mean such things as the following: the new model beds with good springs and mattresses and with cranks at the foot by which the head and back and knees can be raised without fussing with and disturbing the patient; a diet kitchen on each floor with its proper equipment; the modern kind of equipment and easily cleaned rubber floors; efficient and modern sterilizers in the operating room or rooms and on the different floors with the proper kind of high pressure steam heating system to operate them efficiently; proper modern

TEX LOSES BOUT WITH APPENDIX

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 2.—Tex Rickard, premier sports promoter, lay today in a flower banked room in Allison hospital, rendezvous of millionaires, minus his appendix, and plus a great regret. He had been unable to attend the premier of his latest sports venture, the inaugural meeting of the Miami Beach Kennel Club, the magnificent dog racing track which lies at the edge of the Atlantic at the south end of Miami Beach.

Fifteen minutes before post time in the first race at the new plant, said to be the most luxurious and complete greyhound racing track in the world, Rickard was rushed to the operating table for an emergency operation for acute appendicitis. Dr. E. H. Adkins, leading surgeon of the winter colony here, had removed Rickard's appendix and the promoter was resting easily about the time the bugle sounded for the third race.

Missing Music Makers Fail To End Elks Party

Deise's famous Pennsylvania Ramblers from Altoona, Pa., may be still rambling, but evidently on New Year's Eve they got in reverse on a hill and "fa' down an' go boom." This orchestra whose rhythm and popular tunes had been anticipated by a hundred couples for the Elks' New Year's dance, failed to appear.

It didn't seem possible that such a thing could be true, but no amount of long distance telephoning into the Keystone state produced any news of the missing musicians. There were several encouraging telephone calls during the evening that the anxious dancers thought might be news from the Ramblers, but it must go hunting the Wanderers. But Terpsichore laughed up her sleeve, if any, because she probably knew the ways of musicians.

Some of the dancers drifted away to celebrations at Valley Dale and elsewhere in Columbus, but many waited around and employed the unusual situation for great fun making. Something would surely be done.

At about 10:30 o'clock the difficulty was solved when a Brunswick Panatrophe from the Seitz music store was carried in and attached. In another moment the faithful ones were dancing to the music of Vincent Lopez and his Casa Lopez orchestra. Hal Kemp and his orchestra and the Regent club orchestra. Especially popular were "Where the Shy Little Violets Grow" as played by the Columbia club orchestra and "Two Lips." Fulton Cryder directed the orchestras.

About midnight, lunch was served in the dining room downstairs where there was plenty of whoopee and noise, so much in fact that the cannon firing, bell ringing and whistle blowing on the outside were lost on the celebrators. The fact that the orchestra did not arrive seemed to create a most friendly and sociable situation which carried the evening across to a huge success.

The Elks club had contracts that looked as good as warrants, which said that each member of the orchestra was subject to $100 fine for not appearing, and if there were 11 men in the orchestra the committee should be able to pay Paul Whiteman's outfit and keep them over for the sake of having music next year.

It is expected that the club will take the matter up with the New York Federation of Musicians immediately and a settlement demanded. Up to noon Wednesday not a word had been heard from the missing violinists and so forth.

Numbered among the out-of-town persons who attended the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Short, Forrest Short, Mr. and Mrs. John Haswell, Henry Abernethy, Miss Mary Stage and William Downs, of Columbus Mr. and Mrs. George F. McCrea, of Kingsport, Tenn.; Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Lilly, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Ned Groom, of Rochester, N. Y.; Lester Reid, of Duvall and Mr. and Mrs. Collis Young, of Lima.

Ferguson, Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ferguson, 1520 Summit-st. Preceding the ceremony, which took place at 3:15 o'clock at the Thompson home, the bride's brother, Mr. C.

Robert Thompson, announcer for Station WCAO, Baltimore, Md., sang two songs, "At Dawning" and "Peetuse." Miss Gladys Nader of New Lexington, played the piano accompaniment.

Rev. W. R. Walker, pastor of Indianapolis Church of Christ, officiated using the double ring ceremony. The ring bearers were Virginia Leber, daughter of Mrs. Lee Long, 161 Crestview, rd., and Dick Hager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oden H. Hager, 501 Piedman-rd.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 36 relatives and friends.

STUART WALLING WEDS ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

The marriage in Portsmouth of Miss Louise Bush, eldest daughter of Mrs. William Hayden Bush, to Mr. Stuart Burns Walling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Walling, of Circleville and New York City, was solemnized New Year's eve in All Saints Episcopal church at 6:30 o'clock with the Rev. Harold F. Hohly reading the impressive service of the Episcopal church. The altar of the church was banked with Christmas greens, white roses and bunches of white chrysanthemums. Tall cathedral candles in wrought iron candelabra were placed on either side of the aisle leading to the chancel rail. Large palms made an entrance way to the altar, and the soft glow of the lighted candles added to the simplicity and beauty of the setting.

As the guests were being seated Mrs. J. Frost Davis, a close friend of the bride's mother, played a program of wedding music which included "Andantino in D Flat," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Sylvia," "Until Tomorrow," "One Alone," from "The Desert Song." As the bride's mother came down the aisle Mrs. Davis played "I Love You Truly" followed by Lohengrin's wedding march which announced the coming of the bride party.

First came the ushers, Mr. H. Coleman Grimes and Mr. E. F. Wimbush, followed by Mr. Donald Gulkar, and Mr. Richard Jones, walking down the center aisle. The ushers formed a semi-circle at the chancel steps.

Next came the maid-of-honor and only attendant, Miss Gretchen Schirman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry A. Schirman, and an intimate friend of the bride. She was attired in a beautiful gown with bodice of pink chiffon and a tulle collar. The long skirt was tiered with ruffles of pink tulle edged with silver. She wore a draped hat of pink, cut velvet, ornamented with a pin of rhinestones. Her arm bouquet was of pink Columbia roses.

The bride followed Miss Schirman on the arm of her brother, Mr. John W. Bush, who gave her in marriage. Miss Bush's brunette beauty was enhanced by a wedding gown of ivory satin, with yoke of net basque effect and long tight sleeves. The skirt was of uneven hemline with flowers of velvet, fashioned in ivory, and shading to a deep gold ornamenting either side of the skirt from the waistline. The veil, which was her mother's was in cap shape with pearls forming a headband. Her bouquet was a shower of white roses and valley lilies. She was met at the chancel steps by Mr. Walling and his best man, Mr. Paul Adkins of Circleville. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the bride party went out of the church.

A buffet supper was served at the bride's home, Second-st., to the bride party, out-of-town guests, relatives and close friends of the bride. In the receiving line at the home were Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Walling, Mrs. Hayden Bush, who was dressed in a gown of pink chiffon, embellished with rhinestones, and Mrs. Percy Walling, who wore a gown of transparent velvet, finished with a buckle of rhinestones.

Mr. Walling presented his best man and ushers with cigarette lighters, and Mrs. Walling gave Miss Schirman a rhinestone party bag. The groom's gift to the bride was a pretty filigree bracelet.

The bride is a prominent member of the younger social set and is a graduate of Interment college, Bristol, Va. The bridegroom, who came here from Circleville about five years ago is in the motive power department of the Norfolk & Western railway.

The young couple left Monday night for a trip through the east, where they will visit Washington, New York City and many other interesting points.
